1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 14, and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Wirkestrand.

Referring to claim 1, 14, and 19, Wirkestrand discloses a method of communicating information in a network (figure 1), comprising: sending a request for information about a destination node from a source node to a server node (figure 2, i.e. source is first user) that responds to such requests on behalf of the destination node (page 4, lines 15-19, i.e. destination is second user; lines 20-23, server contains an address database which it can search to find destination address); forwarding the request from the server node to the destination node (page 4, lines 28-32, if the destination, i.e. second user is in idle mode then a message is sent to the second user); sending a response to the request from the destination node to the server node (page 4, lines 32-35, when sending a message to the second user, it forces the second user (i.e. destination) to send request to the relevant DHCP server to check on a network address); forwarding the response from the server node to the source node (page 5, lines 1-10, requesting at the DHCP server initiates the host and client where the host computer sends the DHCP request and an address is allocated, stored in DNS server then requested address to the source (i.e. first user)).
